Barnstaple Old Bridge

Glover Stanbury is a long-established accountants with a great reputation based in Barnstaple, North Devon. There is a varied client base from tourism to agricultural and a passion to innovate from the four Partners and a total team of 28 people based between two linked offices. The firm uses Digita and Sage software as well as Microsoft Office.

Glover Stanbury, perhaps more than any other DocuSoft client, has embraced the paperless office concept. It is integral to the ethos of the whole firm and central to that is partner Kevin Salter. He has even written a book - 'Guide to the Paperless Office' so when he was looking for document management system he knew what he wanted.

Kevin was appointed to the committee of the Information Technology Faculty of the Institute of Chartered Accountants in England & Wales in June 1997 and is IT Director of 2020 Innovation Group Limited, a network of over 1500 accounting firms in the UK. He said: "While I was researching the topic I visited a few firms and started writing the guide so it seemed natural that we should have some sort of system at Glover Stanbury and we took the plunge. "The main advantage of DocuSoft is that it is flexible and after looking in depth at about four other systems we decided to use Derek French and the team back in 2006 and have been very happy with that choice.

"My advice to other firms would be to plan well before they make the change and to challenge the way that they work to make a real difference. "It is hard to work out now just how much paper we have saved but in the very first year we calculated we saved around 20,000 sheets. Space saving and filing reduction wasn't such an issue for us back then but would have become one if we hadn't used the system when we did.

"Data management will save you endless treks to the filing cabinet and hunting for documents on the desks of colleagues. So much so, that one peer with DocuSoft said he thought he had put on a couple of stone through being able to get everything at the click of a mouse!"

"So get your office in shape with DocuSoft and join the gym!"
